A BURNING SORE LEG
Ulcers Form. Hospitals and Doctors useless. Crazed with Pain. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

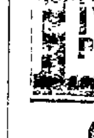

About eight years ago I wrote you from Wilkesbarre, Pa., describing how your wonderful remedies completely cured me of a terrible case of eczema or salt rheum. I must now tell you what CUTICURA REMEDIES have again done for me. On the 22d of last September, I had the misfortune to bruise my leg, and I put a piece of sticking plaster on it. Inside of a week I had a terrible leg. My wife became frightened and advised me to go to a surgeon. I went, and doctored for two months, but no good was done me, besides costing me big money. My leg had by this time formed into an ulcer, and got worse every day. I could not stand it any longer, and made up my mind to go to a hospital and see if I could be helped. I went to several here in the city, in turn, but none could do me any good. I had a terrible leg, with a hole in it as big as a dollar, and pain that almost set me crazy. I got scared about it, and determined to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. I obtained a set, and inside of five weeks my leg was healed up as well as it ever was, except the terrible scar it left for a reminder of what was once a terrible sore leg. These REMEDIES are worth their weight in gold.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

SOLID FOR CLEVELAND

Large Attendance and Much Enthusiasm.

The Democracy of Pennsylvania, in State Convention assembled, has declared that Grover Cleveland should be nominated and elected President of the United States. The convention was held at Harrisburg last Wednesday, Chairman of the State Committee, J. Marshall Wright, called to order; Congressman F. E. Beltzhoover was made temporary chairman and State Senator Ross permanent chairman. The former made a very able speech, saying, among other things: "We are confronted on the threshold of the great economic battle of the present year with the most glaring violations of the constitutional power of taxation which have ever occurred in our history. The rapacity which characterized the exactions of despotic rulers of the past has been revived under the forms of liberty and fattened on the concessions which have been made to its spirit of greed. What was granted as an inconsiderable protection to a few infant industries as an incident to taxation half a century ago has been wrested into a stupendous claim of right, and we are now robbed out of countless millions annually under the McKinley tariff law, which is based on a bold and defiant invasion of the constitutional right of taxation. In the same line of aggression on the rights of the people we have become the victims of a conspiracy between the sordid silver kings of the west, under which all the product of their exhaustless mines is bought up with money taken from the people by taxation. This great wrong has grown strong and arrogant with its success and now demands that all the silver bullion in the world shall be dumped upon the taxpayers of this country at forty per cent. more than it is worth. The last Republican congress crowned the triumphant carnival of extortion and prodigality by lavishing more than a thousand millions of dollars on its parasites and friends, and left a bankrupt treasury as a parting salute to the people for having kicked it out of power.

"We are determined also that there shall be no difference between the money of the rich and the poor, but that the sons of toil shall receive their wages in exactly the same currency as the millionaires receive their dividends. We want every dollar of our money, whether of gold or silver or paper, to be able to stand on its own legs and travel on its own merits everywhere in the world, and that there shall go with it our commerce and our flag into every port and city and island of the sea of the whole circle of the globe.

"We are for honest trade, honest money and honest government and in the enunciation of these principles there should be no uncertainty in the platform of this convention.

"In the selection of a strong and courageous leader who will bear our banner inscribed with these inspiring legends, there should be no difficulty. The galaxy of Democratic statesmen from whom the selection is to be made was never so full of distinguished names. It is perhaps invidious to suggest any one, but I will be pardoned for saying that when tariff reform and honest money and frugal government are seeking a champion in this campaign there is one who stands out before all the world, recognized by all men as the embodiment and exponent of our principles and the idol of the Democratic masses of the nation. The name of Grover Cleveland is enshrined in the affections of all the intelligent, virtuous and substantial citizens of the republic. They honor him for daring to be right when it cost him the brightest jewel in the crown of human ambition. They love him for his heroic character, for his unselfish patriotism, for the beautiful and peerless one who presides over the divinities of his fireside and for the little hostage which their love has given to the security and sanctity of all the happy homes of this Christian nation. This tribute to the incomparable leader, on whom the eyes of the country are now fixed as the man for the occasion must not be regarded as disparaging in any way to the scores of other noble Democrats who are worthy of the highest honors of their party and their country."

After referring in highly complimentary terms to Governor Pattison and Senator Gorman, Mr. Beltzhoover concluded in an eloquent plea for the support of the nominee whoever he may be, and for wisdom, forbearance and moderation in the deliberations of the convention.

Chairman Beltzhoover at the close of his address said the convention was ready for business. A resolution that the convention be governed by the rules of the house of representatives was adopted.

A resolution providing that the committees on credentials, organization and resolutions be composed of one delegate from each of the fifty senatorial districts, was presented and adopted. The various committees were then appointed and ordered to take action and report to the convention at 3.30, to which hour an adjournment was had.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The work of choosing the party candidates then began. Christian Heydrick, of Venango, who was appointed by Governor Pattison to succeed the late Justice Clark, was nominated for judge of the Supreme Court by acclamation. Geo. A. Allen, of Erie, and Mayor Thomas P. Merritt, of Reading, were named as the candidates at large for Congress.

The four electors at large named were: Mortimer F. Elliott, Tioga; John C. Bullitt, Philadelphia; Thomas B. Kennedy, Franklin; David T. Watson, Allegheny.

For delegates at large there were named: George Ross, Bucks; W. U. Hensel, Lancaster; W. M. Singerly, Philadelphia; C. Robinson, Lackawanna; Harry Alvan Hall, Elk; John L. McKinney, Crawford; Grant Herring, Columbia; Henry Meyer, Allegheny.

In addition to these the names of Joseph P. O'Brien, Erie; George F. Baer, Berks; ex-Senator Wm. A. Wallace, George A. Jenks, Jefferson; James M. Guffey, Allegheny; Senator Markley, Montgomery, and several others were presented.

The vote resulted as follows: Ross, 418; Hensel, 424; Singerly, 369; Robinson, 390; Hall, 376; McKinney, 354; Herring, 384; Meyer, 350; Guffey, 118; Wallace, 111; Baer, 113; O'Brien, 123; Markley, 9; Jenks, 3; Dewitt C. Dewitt, 6. The first eight were declared elected.

Mr. Garman, who had figured as a leader of the kickers, in a graceful little speech moved that the nominations be made unanimous, and this was done. Two national delegates and one presidential elector from each of the twenty-eight congressional districts were then named.

THE PLATFORM.

The following is the platform adopted:

"We, the Democracy of Pennsylvania, in convention assembled, join with our political associates of other States in the effort to restore the control of the executive branch of the federal government to the party of the people.

"We pledge anew our fealty to the principles first declared by the illustrious men who founded our free institutions and established the Democratic party to protect and preserve them.

"We believe in the doctrines which have been taught and the practices which have been enforced in the administration of government by Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, by Samuel J. Tilden and Grover Cleveland.

"We believe in and we declare for honest and economical administration, for local self-government, for honest money, the gold and silver coinage of the constitution and for a currency convertible with such coinage without loss, for that genuine civil service reform which recognizes public office as a public trust, for liberal but not reckless pensions and for the speedy abatement of all forms of needless and oppressive taxation.

"With special relation to the pending political conditions in the country and Commonwealth we resolve and declare:

"First—That the paramount reform now demanded of the federal legislature is the reform of the tariff laws upon the basis of the Democratic national platform of 1888, to the end that no money shall be needlessly exacted from the industries and necessities of the people, and that our industrial interests shall not be prejudiced by excessive taxation, false systems of finance or extravagant cost of production. To this end the McKinley tariff bill should be repealed, the essential raw materials of American manufactures should be put upon the free list, and a revised tariff should be adopted, with due regard to the rights of American labor and the preservation of our manufactures.

"Second—That, consistent with this issue and with this demand, the sentiment of the Pennsylvania Democracy is overwhelmingly for the renomination to the presidency of the man who gave to his party intellectual and political leadership and to the country a pure and elevated administration. We declare our conviction that the best interests of the party and of the country demand the nomination and election of Grover Cleveland as President, and we are confident that under his leadership the principles of Democracy will win a glorious victory, and, to the end that the vote and influence of Pennsylvania may be most effectively heard and felt, the delegates this day chosen are directed to act as a unit in all matters entrusted to their charge, said action to be determined by the vote of the majority of the delegates.

"Third—That the honest, courageous and efficient administration of Robert E. Pattison, Governor of Pennsylvania, merits the approval and confidence of the people of the Commonwealth, and has the hearty commendation of the party whose standard he twice carried to victory; that his efforts to enforce the constitution and the laws are praiseworthy and patriotic, and have our unqualified approval.

"Fourth—That the action of the Republican State Senate in evading the duty of pronouncing judgment upon faithless State officials was a cowardly subterfuge and a disgraceful violation of public duty.

"Fifth—That, in accordance with the recommendation of the national Democratic committee, the Democratic State, county and city committees are advised and directed to further by every means in their power the organization of regular Democratic societies in every district and the incorporation of such societies in the Democratic Society of Pennsylvania and the National Association of Democratic Clubs.

"Resolved, That we cordially approve the action of the Democratic State central committee in selecting William F. Harrity to fill the vacancy in the Democratic national committee caused by the death of the late William L. Scott, and we hereby declare Mr. Harrity to be the choice of the Democracy of Pennsylvania for the full term of membership of the Democratic national committee which begins in June next.

"Resolved, That the Democratic State central committee of Pennsylvania is hereby authorized to fill any and all vacancies that may occur after the adjournment of the convention."

ADAMS county was represented in the Convention by A. J. Brady, M. H[illegible], J. H. Wickman and A. H. Parr. Mr. Brady served on the Credentials Committee, Mr. Parr on Organization and M[illegible] on Resolutions.

COLUMBUS.

Applies to a Grandee of Spain: Letter from the French King: Arrives at La Rabida: Invited to Court: His Demands again Rejected: Finally Accepted.

SIXTH ARTICLE.

Written for the Gettysburg Compiler.

Columbus now sought to engage the attention of some of the powerful grandees of Spain, who, though subjects, were almost autocratic in their own regions, serving the crown not so much as vassals as sympathetic helpers in the war. Such were the Dukes of Medina-Sidonia and Medina-Celi. Columbus found in them, however, the same wariness which he had experienced at Court. The Duke of Medina-Celi at last parried the importunities of Columbus by averring that the project deserved the royal patronage rather than his meaner aid. He, however, told the suitor, if a further application should be made to the Crown at some more opportune moment, he would labor with the Queen in its behalf. The Duke kept his word. This carries us forward to the time when Columbus was summoned from Rabida.

A consultation which now took place at the Convent of Rabida affords particulars which the historians have found difficult, as already stated, in keeping distinct from those of an earlier visit. Columbus, according to the usual story, visited the Convent apparently in October or November, 1491, with the purpose of reclaiming his son Diego, and taking him to Cordova, where he might be left with Ferdinand in the charge of the latter's mother. Columbus himself intended to pass to France, to see if a letter, which had been received from the King of France, might possibly open the way to a fulfilment of his great hopes.

It is represented that it was this expressed intention of abandoning Spain which aroused the patriotism of Marchena, who undertook to prevent the sacrifice. At the conclusion of this little circle at the Convent, Columbus threw his course into the hands of his friends there, and agreed to rest quietly in the Convent while they pressed his claims at Court. The Prior Perez wrote a letter of supplication to the Queen; the messenger found the Queen in the city of Santa Fe, which had grown up in the military surroundings before the city of Granada, whose siege the Spanish armies were then pressing. The epistle was opportune, for it re-enforced one which she had already received from the Duke of Medina-Celi. The result was that the messenger took back to Rabida an intimation that his presence would be welcome at Santa Fe. So mounting his mule, after midnight, the friar followed the tracks of the messenger, and reaching the Court, presented himself before the Queen.

The friar urged his petition so strongly that the Queen finally determined to listen once more to the Genoese's appeals. She ordered a gratuity to be sent to him, to restore his wardrobe and to furnish himself with the conveniences of the journey.

Columbus's position was now changed. He had been a suitor. He was now sought. He had been persuaded from his visit to France, in order that he might rehabilitate Spain with a new glory, complemental to her martial pride. This view as presented by Perez to Isabella had been accepted, and Columbus was summoned to present his case.

Here, when he seemed at last on the verge of success, the poor man, unused to good fortune, and mistaking its tokens, repeated the mistake which had driven him an outcast from Portugal. His arrogant spirit led him to magnify his importance before he had proved it; and he failed in the modesty which marks a conquering spirit.

True science places no gratulations higher than those of its own conscience. Copernicus was at this moment delving into the secrets of nature like a nobleman of the universe. So he stands for all time in lofty contrast to the plebian nature and sordid cravings of his contemporary.

When at the very outset of his negotiations, Talavera found this uplifted suitor making demands that belonged rather to proved success than to a contingent one, there was little prospect of accommodation, unless one side or the other should abandon its position. If Columbus' own words count for anything, he was conscious of being a laughing-stock, while he was making claims for office and emoluments that would mortgage the power of a kingdom. A dramatic instinct has in many minds saved Columbus from the critical estimate of such presumption. He would not abate one jot of his pretensions, and an end was put to the negotiations. Making up his mind to carry his suit to France, Columbus left Santa Fe on his mule, in the beginning of February, 1492.

A disheartened wanderer, with his back turned on the Spanish Court, his mule plodding along the road to Cordova, Columbus offered a sad picture to the few adherents he had left behind. They had grown to have his grasp of confidence, but lacked his spirit to clothe an experimental service with the certainties of an accomplished fact.

Two of his friends, Louis de Santangal and Alonzo de Quintanilla, sought the Queen. In an audience the two advocates presented the case anew. The trivial cost and risk were contrasted with the glowing possibilities. They pictured her caravels, bearing the banner of Spain to the regions of opulence in the East. Finally the warmth and glory of an almost realized expectancy filled the Queen's cabinet. The conquest was made. Orders were at once given for a messenger to overtake Columbus. A horseman came up with him at the bridge of Pinos, two leagues from Granada. There was a moment's hesitancy, but his decision was not prolonged. He turned his mule and journeyed, with the messenger, back to the city. Columbus was sought once more, and in a way to give him the vantage which his imperious demands could easily use.

The interview with the Queen which followed removed all doubt of his complete ascendency. Ferdinand in turn yielded to the persuasions of his chamberlain, Juan Cabrero, and to the supplications of the Queen. The ensuing days were devoted to the arrangements of the details. These are somewhat lengthy and we omit them here; the curious and interested reader will find them in almost all the works on Columbus.

On the 17th of April, 1492, the King and Queen signed at Santa Fe, and delivered to Columbus, a passport to all persons in unknown parts, commending the Admiral (this was the title by which Columbus was to be known hereafter, and for which, and many others, he contended so strenuously) to their friendship. This paper is preserved in Barcelona. On the same day the monarchs agreed to the conditions of a document which was drawn up by the royal Secretary, Juan de Colona, and is preserved among the papers of the Duke of Veragua, agreeing to all the demands and conditions of Columbus. These capitulations were followed on the 30th of April by a commission, in which it was further granted that the Admiral and his heirs should use the prefix Don or Lord, to their name.

It is supposed Columbus now gave heed to his domestic concerns. We know nothing, however, of any provision for the lonely Beatrix, but it is said that he placed his boy, Fernando, then but four years of age, at school in Cordova, near his mother. He left his lawful son, Diego, well provided for through an appointment by the Queen, who made him page to Prince Juan, the heir-apparent. Columbus himself tells us that he then left Granada on the 12th of May, 1492, and went direct to Palos, stopping, however, on the way at Rabida, to exchange congratulations with its friar Juan Perez, if indeed he did not lodge at the Convent during his stay in the little seaport.

On the 23d of May, accompanied by Juan Perez, Columbus met the people of Palos assembled in the Church of St. George, while a notary read the royal commands laid upon the town. It took a little time for the simple people to divine the full extent of such an order—its consignment of fellow-creatures to the dread evils of the great unknown ocean. The reluctance to enter upon the undertaking proved so great, except among a few prisoners taken from the jails, that it became necessary to report the obstacles at Court, when a new peremptory order was issued on June 20th, to impress the vessels and crews. Even such imperative measures availed little. It was not till Martin Alonzo Pinzon came forward, and either by an agreement to divide with Columbus the profits or through some other understanding, exerted his influence, in which he was aided by his brother, also a navigator, Vincente Yanez Pinzon. There is a story traced to a son of the elder Pinzon, who testified in the Columbus lawsuit that Martin Alonzo had at one time become convinced of the existence of western lands from some documents and charts which he had seen at Rome.

The help of the Pinzons proved opportune and did much to save the cause, for it had up to this time seemed impossible to get vessels and crews. The fleet consisted of two open Caravels, "Nina" and "Pinta"—the latter, with its crew, being pressed into the service—decked only at the extremities, where high prows and poops gave quarters for the crews and officers. A large-decked vessel of the register known as a Carack, and renamed by Columbus the "Santa Maria," which proved "a dull sailer and unfit for discovery," was taken by Columbus as his flagship. Her owner was one Juan de la Cosa, apparently not the same person as the navigator and cosmographer later to be met, and he had command of her, while Pero Alonzo Nino and Sancho Ruis served as pilots. An estimate of her dimensions from her reputed tonnage by the scale of that time was said to be sixty-three feet over all in length, fifty-one feet along her keel, twenty feet beam, and ten and a half feet in depth.

The two Pinzons were assigned to the command of the other Caravels—Martin Alonzo to the "Pinta," the larger of the two, with a third brother of his as pilot, and Vincente Yanez to the "Nina." Many obstacles and the natural repugnance of sailors to embark in so hazardous a service still delayed the preparations, but by the beginning of August the arrangements were completed, and a hundred and twenty persons were ready to be committed to what many of them felt were most desperate fortunes.

There was no lack of the formal assignments usual in such important undertakings. There was a notary to record the proceedings and a historian to array the story; an interpreter to be prepared with Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Arabic, Coptic and Armenian, in the hopes that one of these tongues might serve in intercourse with the great Asiatic potentates, and a metallurgist to pronounce upon precious ores. They were not without a physician and surgeon. It does not appear if their hazards should require the last solemn rites that there was any priest to shrive them; but Columbus determined to start with all the solemnity that a confession and the communion could impart, and this service was performed by Juan Perez, both for him and for his entire company.

The directions of the Crown also provided that Columbus should avoid the Guinea coast and all other possessions of the Portugese, which seems to be little more than a striking manifestation of a certain kind of incredulity respecting what Columbus, after all, meant by sailing west. Indeed, there was necessarily more or less vagueness in everybody's mind as to what a western passage would reveal, or how far a westerly course might of necessity be swung one way or the other.

There was, moreover, no confidence that such things as floating islands might not be encountered. Pliny and Seneca had described them, and Columbus was inclined to believe that St. Brandan and the Seven Cities, and such as the dwellers at the Azores had claimed to see in the offing, might be of this character. There were 119 cigar factories in operation, employing about 2,000 hands.

There were 56,295,695 cigars sold, which, at $3.00 per thousand would amount to a revenue of $168,887.38½. 21,187,165 cigars were manufactured in McSherrystown. There was an increase last year over the previous year of 6,000,000 cigars.

To The Spring Poet.

Awake thee, Spring poet, thy sleep has been long.
Awake thee and sing us a right merry song,
The birds are beginning their glad notes to trill,
All Nature is singing, but thou sleepest still.

Do no dreams of green hill-sides disturb thy deep sleep,
No visions of nooks where the first blossoms peep?
Do your ears fail to hear the glad brook's sound,
As it leaps o'er the rocks, from its ice-clasp unbound?

Now rouse thee, Spring Poet, we've been waiting long,
With the Winter around us, for a promise and song,
Come tell us the signs by which we may know,
That soon Spring will succeed the ice and the snow.

A WINTER DAY'S JOURNEY.

A bitter February day. Not a pleasant day to travel in, by any means; but, then, Lettice Mainwaring was one of the sort that makes the best of everything.

"It's a long journey over the hills, Miss," said the wife of the landlord of the little one-story tavern that was perched on the crest of the highway, "and the snow's powerful deep."

"I think a winter landscape is the prettiest thing in the world," said Lettice, cheerily, as she wound her fur boa round and round her neck.

"And old Stokes' stage is awful uncomfortable," added the landlady.

"I like stage riding," asserted Letty.

"You'll not get there till dark."

"Oh, that is sooner than I expected."

And Letty climbed up into the stage coach, which stood creaking and groaning at the door, having just rumbled up from the next village, a mile or so down the hill.

One solitary passenger occupied the opposite corner—a tall, dark man, with a Spanish sort of complexion and clear, dark eyes, who wore an odd sort of olive green cloak or mantle, heavily trimmed with sable fur. He nodded briefly in return to Letty's smiling recognition. Our little heroine would have talked with a polar bear, had a polar bear chanced to be her traveling companion.

Letty arranged her furs and her basket and her bonnet strings, and wondered secretly how far the tall man was going.

"Can I be of any assistance to you?" courteously queried the gentleman, as Letty searched in the straw at her feet for a dropped glove.

"Thanks—no," said Letty, coming up again with very red cheeks and curls a little disheveled. "Are you going all the way through?"

"As far as the stage goes—yes."

"O," said Miss Mainwaring, "so am I."

The gentleman nodded interrogatively, and went back to his paper.

"Cross thing!" thought Letty, involuntarily, pouting her pretty lips. "Why can't he talk and make himself agreeable? And he knows very well that we are to be shut up here together for eight long hours."

But the wild, mountainous landscape, as it flitted by, while gleaming with snow and darkly fringed with the waving of hemlock boughs and solemn crested pines, was, after all, nearly as good a study as the "human face divine," and Letty soon forgot her temporary annoyance and chagrin in the white skeleton-like walls of a deserted old paper mill long since disused and fallen to ruin.

"I wonder if it is haunted?" said she, aloud.

The stranger smiled and laid down his paper.

"Do you believe in such things?" he asked.

Lettice Mainwaring laughed and colored.

"Of course not; and yet—are you much acquainted in this region of the country?"

"I have lived hereabouts a good deal."

"Oh! then perhaps you know Esterham Hall?"

His face brightened.

"Oh, yes. You are going there?"

"Yes. I am to be governess to the little children," said Letty, making haste to enlighten him as to her true position, in order that he should fully comprehend that she was no elegant young lady going to the hall to make a visit, but a humble little working bee, who was obliged to toil steadfastly for the daily bread she ate.

"Indeed!" he said.

And Letty was vexed at herself for noticing the polite indifference into which his tone subsided.

"I suppose it is a very fine old place," she went on.

"Very—for those who fancy 'fine old places.' To my taste they are apt to be overrun with rats, full of draughts and picturesquely inconvenient."

"And haunted, perhaps," mischievously put in Lettice, the roguish sparkle coming back to her eyes.

"So far as I know, Esterham Hall is free from any supernatural occupants."

"I am sorry for that," said Letty.

He arched his eyebrows.

"You would like to share your room with a ghost or two?"

"No, but I do like a little tinge of romance about the place—something to set it a little above and beyond the level of the commonplace."

He did not answer, and talkative Letty once more set the conversation ball rolling.

"The Easterhams are very rich, I suppose?"

"Yes."

"I never heard of them until last week," said she, musingly; "and now—how strangely things are ordered in this world—I am going to cast in my lot among them."

"How does that happen?" said the gentleman. He could not very well say less in ordinary politeness, and yet Letty felt triumphantly that she had "drawn him out."

"They wrote to Mme. Moligny, my old teacher, to select a governess qualified to teach two little boys; and madame knew that I wished for a situation and so here I am. I wonder how they will like me?"

"I hope you will like them," said the gentleman.

"That isn't the question," Letty corrected imperatively. "Mr. Easterham is a dreadful bear."

"You are acquainted with him?"

"Oh no; only what I have heard," answered Letty.

"And what may that be?"

"You are a neighbor," said Letty, doubtfully. "Perhaps I've said too much already."

He laughed with more animation than she had yet seen in his manner.

"Depend upon it, I shall not betray you to Mr. Easterham. So he is a bear? Well, I have thought so sometimes myself."

"But he won't bite me if I am a good girl and do my duty to the little ones; and they tell me they are very nice boys," persisted Letty.

"They are very much like their father, I believe."

"Oh," said Letty, laughing, "I can tame young bears; it is only the full-grown specimen, with sharp teeth and long claws, I am afraid of. Only think," and a demure, apprehensive expression came over Letty's round, blooming countenance, "he goes all around the house all day long and never says a word to anyone."

"He must be a savage, indeed," said the gentleman.

"And Miss Electa Easterham, the old maid aunt who keeps house for him, has quarreled successively with every governess they have had," went on Letty, patting her little foot on the rustling straw on the stage floor, "but she shall not quarrel with me. I won't let her. I am too good natured and too accustomed to humoring people especially old ones. Mme. Moligny wrote me word that she disliked young and pretty governesses particularly. Now I'm not young—not very young, you see."

"No?"

"I was twenty last week," said Letty, "and I'm not pretty enough to disturb her mind. I am only tolerably decent looking. Now, if Madame had selected Olive Dayton, who used to be in the same class with me—she was a regular beauty, with great shady eyes and a complexion all pearls and roses—there would have been danger then."

The stranger began to look interested.

"Tell me more about your school," he said. "I have a sister whom I think of placing in some desirable institution, and I should like to judge whether your Mme. Moligny's would be a good home for her."

Letty's eyes brightened, her cheeks reddened and her little tongue was unloosed at once. Her traveling companion was social and chatty and the time fleeted swiftly away.

"You are going," she cried, as at a little inn, overshadowed with silver stemmed birches and funeral spruce woods, a light sleigh, drawn by two milk-white horses, was waiting.

"I have reached the end of my journey," he said, courteously touching his fur cap. "I had intended keeping on to the end of the route, but I see they have sent to meet me here. I wish you every success and happiness in your bear taming."

And as the sleigh bells jingled away Letty found herself blushing deeply.

"I'm afraid I've been talking too much," thought Letty, "but what is a body to do, shut up all day long in a coach with a conversable gentleman?"

And the rest of Miss Mainwaring's journey was just a little tedious.

It was dusk when she arrived at Esterham Hall—a snowy, chill dusk which made the glow of lights through the scarlet moreen curtains and the coral shine of a great wood fire in a stone paved hall, as seen through the half open door, most delightful and welcome.

Aunt Electa, a tall, prim old lady in snowy cap ribbons and a brown satin dress, stood ready to welcome her, and just behind her Letty saw a tall gentleman with two little boys clinging about him.

"This is my nephew Philip," the old lady said, and Letty felt as if the blood in her veins were turning into fire as she recognized her traveling companion of the day.

"Do I look very much like a bear, Miss Mainwaring?" he asked, laughing, as she stood trembling and tongue-tied before him. "No, don't color. I promise you to allow myself to become very tamable. And you must not cry either," as the tears came into Letty's eyes. "There's nothing for you to cry for."

"Why didn't you tell me who you were?" she asked piteously.

"Because you never asked me."

Letty resolved within herself that she would leave Esterham Hall the very next day. But she didn't keep the resolution.

At the next year's end she had neither quarreled with Aunt Electa nor Mr. Esterham, and the little boys thought "Miss Letty" was perfection. So did their father.

"Letty," said he, "the year for which I engaged you is over."

"Yes," she responded softly.

"Will you stay another year. Will you stay with me always, Letty?"

And so, within the yellow shine of a wedding ring Letty found herself a prisoner forever at Esterham Hall.

Underground Amusement.

A novel feature which is proposed in connection with the World's Fair is a sort of subterranean theatre. A large elevator, capable of holding 100 persons, will start on a trip into the bowels of the earth every few minutes from an entrance way arranged to look like the mouth of Mammoth Cave. At 200 feet below the surface the occupants of the elevator will be given a view of a coal mine in full operation; 200 feet further they will see the polar regions, Esquimaux, sleds, dogs, aurora borealis, and all; 200 feet below will reveal a glimpse of the infernal regions. Another 200 feet and they will see the depths of the ocean, with wrecks and divers, and at 1,000 feet under ground they will be invited to leave the elevator in a wonderful cavern, brilliant with stalactites and electricity, where they can procure such refreshments as the inner man may crave, at suitable prices. When they desire to revisit the upper air they will not take the elevator, but instead will be shown up a short staircase and directly out upon Chicago's streets, for the cavern will be but ten feet under ground, and all the descent and the marvelous sights nothing but illusion. A young Frenchman is the originator of the plan, and a company has been organized to put it into execution.

Victims of Southern Floods.

Nashville, Tenn., April 12—The possible loss of life across the Mississippi State line grows more appalling and the death list is constantly increasing. The water now is over the land for seventy miles south of here. Scores of houses, bodies of men, women and children, together with those of dumb beasts are floating on the muddy waters. Over 1,200 people are homeless. The flood is caused by the sudden rising of sixteen rivers which form a network over North Mississippi. Rafts, small boats and canoes were built by the score and stocked with provisions. Daring rescuers have started out to carry aid to the sufferers. One raftsman rowed 23 miles last night with 26 bodies piled upon his raft with no light but an oil lantern to guide him. Every hour or so a boatman or raftsman comes into one of the many landings with one to ten bodies, swollen, discolored and some of them beginning to decay. Sixty-one bodies of both sexes have been recovered thus far. The flood is beginning to recede slowly. It is estimated that the damage will amount to over $2,000,000.

BRAINARD'S MUSICAL WORLD for April is an "Easter Holiday Number," full of beautiful new music and interesting reading matter. It contains three new piano pieces: "The First Kiss" by Wm. Schlueter; "Serenata" by Moszkowski and "Remembrance of Happy Days" a charming piece by Richard Ferber. Also an exquisite new Cradle Song by Ferber, "Oh, Lullaby my Baby." The music in this number is alone worth $2.00. Mailed post-paid for 15 cents in stamps. Published monthly at $1.50 per year.

The Musicians' Guide (Spring Edition 1892) contains, besides 212 pages of musical information, biographies of 150 musicians, with 25 portraits, a "Teachers" and other valuable features, including three new songs and two piano pieces. Mailed free for eight two-cent stamps, or the World and Guide containing the above nine songs and pieces, mailed for twelve two-cent stamps. Address, The S. Brainard's Sons Co., Chicago, Ill.

CHANGED THE SUBJECT.—He (gently)—"Are you not afraid some one may marry you for your money?"

She (sweetly)—"Oh, dear, no. Such an idea never entered my head."

He (tenderly)—"Ah, in your sweet innocence you do not know how coldly, cruelly, mercenary some men are."

She (quietly)—"Perhaps not."

He (with suppressed emotion)—"I—I would not for the world have such a terrible fate happen to you. The man who wins you should love you for yourself alone."

She—"He'll have to. It's my Cousin Jennie who has money, not I. You've got us mixed. I haven't a cent."

He—"Er—very pleasant weather we're having."—N. Y. Weekly.

"WILL you please let me take the other end of the lounge, Clara?"

"Certainly—but why do you wish to do so?"

"I will then be on your right."

"What of that?"

"Because I am going to propose to you and I have been told that a man should get on the right side of a girl before he proposes to her."

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 15 1892

Editor of Compiler. Mr Harrison is confronted by a very peculiar situation. He must choose between violating a pledge made to one of his few personal friends, and keeping that pledge and jeopardizing his chance of being renominated by antagonizing the most powerful Senators in his party. He has this week intimated to Senator Quay, who claims the right to name the successor to the late Justice Bradley of the U. S. Supreme Court, as the price of his support, that he intended to keep the pledge made to Attorney General Miller when he was taken into the Cabinet, and nominate him to the vacancy. Mr Quay told him, it is said, that he could control enough votes in the Senate to defeat the nomination, and more that if it was made he would use all of his influence to have the Minneapolis convention nominate an anti-Harrison man.

This is not the first time that Mr Harrison has intimated his intention to redeem that promise made to his old law partner, but in the cases of the other vacancies on the Supreme Court he was [illegible] bulldozed out of his intentions by Senators and other prominent men in his party, and he may be again, but those near to him say that he fears to allow this opportunity to go by of providing for his friend, for it is hardly probable that there will be another vacancy during his term of office, and he fears that he cannot be reelected even if he is renominated. Still he will probably think some time before he deliberately invites a fight with the Senators who could be controlled by Quay, as he knows very well that many of them only wish an excuse to fight him anyway.

It has often been stated that anything was possible in Washington provided enough money was put up, and the purchase of a site for the new Washington Post Office by authority of the billion dollar Congress in the disreputable locality on the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue where the ground is only about two feet above ordinary high tide in the Potomac and where the engineers are now driving forty foot piles in search of a foundation firm enough to build upon, certainly furnished a convincing argument that the statement is in close proximity to the truth, and the high price paid for the ground makes it certain that the money spent by the real estate lobby in manipulating the deal all came back with several hundred per cent. interest.

Marquis Imperiali has advised the Italian government that he has received from the United States $25,000 for the families of the victims of the New Orleans riot. This money was accompanied by a note from Mr Blaine in which he declared that although the wrong was not committed directly by the United States, the latter nevertheless feels its solemn duty in the premises. The note adds that Mr Blaine declares he feels great pleasure that the national government should pay to Italy a satisfactory indemnity. In consequence of the instructions given to Mr Blaine by President Harrison the latter hopes that the arrangement will end the unfortunate incident, that the [illegible] relations between the two countries will be firmly reestablished and that nothing in the future will occur to disturb such relation. In his note replying to Mr Blaine's communication the Marquis says: Italy considers the indemnity sufficient without prejudice to any actions of law brought by the aggrieved parties. He also expresses the hope that the payment of indemnity will result in happy reestablishment of relations between the two governments.

The House has been working very industriously on appropriation bills this week. The Democrats are determined to push the work of the House so that the responsibility of prolonging the session beyond the middle of June or the first of July will have to be assumed by the Republican Senate. DEM

An Onerous Tobacco Tax

The increased duty on Sumatra tobacco wrappers is still making trouble in the trade. The trade papers say it has inflicted severe injury on the domestic producers the very class it was pretended by the tariff tinkers that it would help. It is the experience of the trade that the Sumatra wrapper has not been displaced to any extent by the domestic wrapper. The soil and climate of this country are not adapted to the raising of good wrappers. When the two dollar pound tariff was first levied the manufacturers of cigars tried the experiment of using domestic wrappers but they quickly found that the trade would not have the cigars thus made. The result was that the manufacturers were obliged to return to the use of the Sumatra wrapper and the manufacturers who had the foresight to secure a large stock of Sumatra wrappers before the increased duty took effect were so much the better off.

The solution of the difficulty suggested is in a repeal of the present tariff on Sumatra wrappers and the levying on them of a uniform duty of 50 cents a pound. This would not only give great satisfaction to the trade but it would make it possible for the manufacturers to return to the use of American fillers and binders instead of the Havana product and thus restore the market for the American product.—[illegible]

REPUBLICAN State Convention at Harrisburg to-morrow. Quay is on the ground.

RHODE ISLAND is a Republican State, a hide-bound, money-controlled, ill-bred Republican state. It has not cast a Democratic majority in a presidential year since 18[illegible]. It has occasionally been Democratic on local questions and a short vote, but never when the contest hinged on general issues.

At the late election it cast the smallest majority for the Republican candidate it has ever given in a year that the fight was made for the effect it might have on the presidential contest. The Republicans confidently expected to carry it by thousands. They hoped to show that the McKinley tariff act and the position of their party on important public questions were popular in a state that has more manufactories to the square foot than has any other commonwealth that our flag waves over. They spent money as freely as if they were "green goods" dealers, and put forth efforts to secure an overwhelming victory such as its voters never witnessed or dreamed of. And with all their hopes and efforts and boodle they came out of the contest with a reduced majority and with but little hope of holding Rhode Island to its Republican moorings in the presidential storm of November next.—Baltimore

THE PEOPLE MAY BE TRUSTED.—While fallacies of various kinds have now and then a certain currency in this country a reaction inevitably follows which makes the cause of reason and honesty all the stronger. The people may be trusted sooner or later to do the right thing. One of the curious results of the free silver agitation for example is to give additional strength to the candidate who may be regarded as one of the stanchest champions of honest money. The men who dug the silver pit for Mr Cleveland have fallen into it themselves and have so contrived matters as to bring about the very nomination they sought to defeat. They have practically assured his nomination by making it necessary for the Democracy to take a candidate whose financial soundness is above suspicion. With the silver issue eliminated by the nomination of Mr Cleveland it will be practicable to renew the fight for tariff reform without other so-called "issues" to distract public attention and divide the forces of the Democracy.—Balt Sun

Potatoes Growing Like Peas.—Wellbaugh and Cheming in their explorations in the Columbian Andes have discovered a species of potato the vines of which were covered with well developed tubers growing in the open air like peas or tomatoes. Each potato is protected by a thin film or membrane not unlike that which envelops the "ground cherry." They do not grow in clusters, each being given plenty of space in which to thoroughly mature. The natives say that during the dry season the membrane surrounding each potato is filled with water, which in a measure protects it from the rays of the sun.

Easter in the Churches.

The services connected with the Easter celebration were unusually well attended in all the churches on Sunday.

At the Reformed the number of communicants considerably exceeded that of many past years, 22 persons being confirmed and 15 admitted by certificate. In the evening the auditorium was crowded to its utmost to witness the Sunday School service, which was conducted by the Pastor Rev F J Barkley and consisted of music, an appropriate address by Mr Patterson of the Theological Seminary and recitations by Misses Helen Freshaw and Daisy Williams. The singing, a prominent feature, was accompanied by Miss Lou Danner on the new pipe organ, and by Messrs M S Ecker and S A Troxel on cornets, Jno W Tipton violin and Harry Fleming flute. A generous collection was taken for missions. The font and pulpit platform were tastefully decorated with cut flowers. The infant department received colored eggs in neat little baskets.

The spacious audience room of St James Lutheran was so crowded in the morning that extra seats were provided. A profusion of plants and flowers adorned the pulpit. In administering the communion the Pastor Rev Dr Swartz was assisted by Rev Sheeder. A class of 18 was confirmed, 1 joining on certificate. In the afternoon Superintendent Geo W Spangler presided over a very pleasing Sunday School service during which Dr Swartz delivered an address. The infants were made glad with colored eggs.

At Christ Lutheran the pulpit was more elaborately decorated than ever before, including masses of palms, lilies and foliage plants. The Pastor Rev Dr G A Hay was assisted at the Communion by Rev Profs P M Bikle and J G Breidler. A Sunday School service in the afternoon conducted by Prof F S Breidenbaugh, the Superintendent was addressed by Rev Dr Hay and Prof Bikle and Bender. Here as well as at St James liberal collections were taken for Church Extension.

At St Francis Xavier's church Very Rev J A Boll Pastor, the impressive services incident to the day were attended by large congregations.

The Episcopal chapel of the Prince of Peace Rev T P Hughes Rector, was prettily decorated and the day celebrated in the customary manner.

In the absence of Rev Dr Demarest Rev Dr Norcross of Carlisle administered Communion at the Presbyterian church in the morning and preached a sermon in the evening.

At the Methodist the Sunday School had special services the Pastor [illegible] colored eggs.

In the United Brethren the Y P C U celebrated the event, addressed by Mr Elmer Hutchison president. An address was delivered by the Pastor Rev J K Hutchison.

Another Township Meeting.

A meeting of the taxpayers of Cumberland township was held at Round Top school house on Friday evening to hear the report of the committee appointed at the previous meeting to consult legal advice relative to any action against the electric railway. Mr Wm Wible was called to preside and Mr Oliver Pfoutz to make secretary. The president asked for a report from the committee, but getting no reply, Mr W H Tipton was called on and spoke of the benefits to be derived from the electric railway followed by Mr Wible on his experience with roads of this kind. A resolution was adopted without opposition in favor of building the road.

Oliver I Pfoutz, sec

We understand the purchase of a stone crusher was talked of and voluntary subscriptions of $100 offered to piking the Emmitsburg road from the borough limits to the Peach Orchard. The supervisors were asked to get the names of taxpayers on the subject.

Y M. C. A Convention.

The fifth annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association Harrisburg district will be held in this place on Friday, Saturday and Sunday next. The day sessions will be held in the Methodist church, opening on Friday afternoon at 2.30 with the reception exercises. Evening sessions will be held in Christ Lutheran church. Rev Dr G A Hay delivering the address of welcome on Friday. The service commencing at 7.30. Mr W H Keck will respond, followed by an address by Rev F J Leak of Harrisburg. Saturday's programme include a number of papers relating to the work of the Association. Sunday evening a union service will be held in Christ church. Over one hundred delegates are expected.

Carlisle Presbytery last week adopted the following report of a special committee appointed to consider the matter.

"The Presbytery has heard with sorrow of the illness which has kept the Rev T K Demarest D D from attendance upon this meeting. As his fellow Presbyters we express sympathy with him in this Providence and unite in earnest prayer that our Lord may restore his health and continue a ministry which has been so acceptable and blessed.

"The Presbytery also desires to put upon record its high appreciation of the action of the Gettysburg church in granting an ample leave of absence to Dr Demarest and continuing his salary. This action indicates an attachment to their pastor and a high regard for his work among them for the past 17 years which are worthy of special and honorable mention on our record. We request the stated clerk to convey this action to our brother Dr Demarest, and to the Gettysburg church."

This graceful recognition of a truly Christian act is appreciated by all our people.

Prohibition Convention.—The Prohibitionists of this county held a convention in the Court room on Saturday afternoon Rev J K Hutchison presiding and Harry Monfort secretary. Rev Dr Joel Swartz, Rev S K Hutchison Rev G A Singer, C S Griest and James White were chosen delegates to the State convention June 1st with Harry Monfort S K Morrison and Rev D T Koser as alternates. State Chairman Patton discussed the new ballot law in the afternoon and addressed a large audience in the evening. Miss Ellie Rankin sang a number of fine solos.

Fine Team.—Mr C A Pank who has started the baking business in this place drives a handsome horse and wagon for delivery purposes.

Base Ball.—The College base ball team has been reorganized. Games have been arranged with Western Maryland, Mt St Mary's, Hagerstown, Nine and Dickinson, Franklin and Marshall, Millersville State Normal, Johns Hopkins, Chester Military Academy, and New Windsor.

New Branch of the B & O.—A bill incorporating the Hagerstown and State Line Railroad, which passed the Maryland Legislature without attracting any attention, now turns out to be an important part of the alliance between the Baltimore and Ohio, the Reading and Western Maryland. From official sources it is learned that the agreement between the companies contains a covenant upon the part of the Western Maryland to construct a cut-off road between a point near Hagerstown Station to Five Forks a few miles northwest from Waynesboro, in Franklin county, Pa.

Instead of a reproduction of an Aztec temple Mexico will construct a typical hacienda or residence of a wealthy landed proprietor.

Beef ice cream is the latest edible novelty.

Town Council Meeting.

Another special meeting of the Town Council was held last evening, all the members present but Mr Spangler, the Burgess in the chair. After order had been called, Mr Wolf arose to offer a resolution which the Burgess refused to hear, pounding with his gavel during the entire reading. The motion was seconded by Dr O'Neal, the resolution reading as follows:

Resolved, That the Town Council do not recognize the Burgess, McConaughy, as the presiding officer of this body, and that henceforth his presence in this Council as presiding officer or any attempt to preside will be resisted by this body.

The Burgess emphatically refused to recognize the mover or motion and was supported by Messrs Tipton, Stine and Fawney. President Lyers called upon Mr Sheely the Borough Attorney for an opinion, which he gave, saying to Mr Lyers amid the active use of the gavel by the Burgess: "You are the only legal presiding officer of this body."

Dr O'Neal arose to speak, but being called to order by the Burgess replied that he [McConaughy] was not the legal presiding officer and members were not obliged to obey his orders. Mr Wolf said the Council had been humbugged long enough.

In the confusion, a motion to adjourn was declared carried by the Burgess, the Republicans rising from their chairs. Mr Lyers again called on Mr Sheely for a legal opinion which was given as above after which the resolution was put and passed without a dissenting voice.

On motion of Dr O'Neal the Council adjourned.

A Well Merited Word.—The value of baking powder consists in the fact that the proportion of alkali and acid is exact, and there is no danger of having yellow biscuit from an excess of soda, or heavy ones from an excess of acid. It is probable that many of the powders are adulterated with injurious substances, and others with harmless additions to increase the bulk and consequently the profits. In our own family we have excellent results from the use of the Royal Baking Powder. We have no reason to think that it contains any harmful ingredient. Those who object to the use of baking powder because of adulteration must needs be very sure of the soda and the cream of tartar they use in place of the powder.—N. Y. Christian Union.

Series of Free Lectures.

Our citizens are about to be favored with a course of four Lectures to be delivered by Rev Frank Russel, D D, in a series of union meetings beginning with next Sunday night, 24th inst. The Evangelical Alliance for the United States has been making investigations into the religious condition of cities, towns and country communities and studying methods by which the principles of the gospel can be successfully applied to the solution of these problems. Dr Russel, the Field Secretary of the Alliance has reduced the results of all these investigations into four lectures, which he has delivered before hundreds of audiences in twenty of our States and in Great Britain. The subjects are "The Religious Condition of our Communities." "Cooperation of Churches in Community Work." "Personal Responsibility of Church Members in Community Work and Community Work by Practical Methods within Existing Denominational Lines." On Sunday and Monday nights Dr Russel will hold forth in Christ Lutheran church, on Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the Presbyterian church. Dr Russel has received testimonials as a brilliant and forcible speaker from a number of the most eminent men and the foremost journals of the country. We are confident that a treat is in store for his audiences.

The increase of our business has made us make enlargements in our store and floor space. We have re-arranged the centre of our first floor, putting in new stands of shelves and counters. Have put in our use, by counters and shelves, the part of the second floor formerly used for Carpets, and are now using it for Shades, Curtains and Upholstering Goods, and the large floor space, 30x55, formerly used for furniture, is now our Carpet Show Room. Giving us now a store capacity and facility very much beyond that of any other store in the county. Store room and floor space wouldn't amount to much if we didn't have the goods to fill it. As this is a Carpet advertisement we want to talk of Carpets naturally. You who have an acquaintance with our store need only see our second floor (now 30x115 feet) to know that our stock this year is very much augmented over other seasons. The Peach Borer.

A Clarksville, Va., paper has the following from a correspondent as a remedy for the peach borer: "Make a funnel-shaped hole around the tree and put a double handful of salt to each tree any time of the year, but spring and fall are the best. A friend of mine on the eastern shore of Virginia told me his trees would not hold the fruit. I prescribed the above. He was afraid it would kill his trees, but tried it on one row of trees and got his first fruit from that row. I have put common salt around the trees in the summer, when the leaves were all crumpled up and falling off, and had that tree put out new leaves."

The COMPILER would suggest that the borer be searched for with great industry and a pointed knife-blade beforehand, and depend upon the salt as a finishing touch.

The Elberta Peach.

This large and handsome yellow peach, which has a high reputation in Georgia and other Southern States, appears to maintain its character when raised as far north as Ohio. At a recent meeting of the Ohio Horticultural Society, Mr. Albaugh said that although of southern origin it did well at the North, and he described it as in color and shape like Crawford's Early, as large as Crawford's Late, and bearing shipment well and keeping a week in transit. He stated that 300 bushels of this variety, packed in peck boxes and shipped from Georgia, netted the owner $2 00 in New York. Wm. Miller said he had planted 500 trees of the Elberta, and now wishes he had planted a thousand. It ripens in Northern Ohio during the last half of September, but the shipments from Georgia are several weeks earlier.—Country Gentleman.

Good Corn Fertilizers.

The following fertilizers for corn have been tried, and are recommended for corn by Prof. W. P. Brooks, of the Hatch Experiment Station at Amherst, Mass., having been tested by him during the past two seasons in different sections:

No. 1, muriate of potash 175 pounds, dissolved bone black 175 pounds, and nitrate of soda 100 pounds.

No. 2, muriate of potash 175 pounds, plain superphosphate 150 pounds, bone meal 100 pounds, and dried blood 175 pounds.

No. 3, wood ashes 1,500 pounds, bone meal 100 pounds, nitrate of soda 100 pounds.

No. 4, wood ashes 1,500 pounds and dry ground fish 430 pounds, and No. 5, muriate of potash 175 pounds and dry ground fish 400 pounds.

The ashes, bone meal or fish should be applied very early in the spring or late in winter. Apply all these fertilizers broadcast and harrow in. Do not mix a long time before use: especially is this important in the case of Nos. 3 and 4. Between formulas 1, 2 and 3 there should be but little difference in cost, but Nos. 3 and 4 will probably cost $4 or $5 per ton more. The amounts given are those to be applied per acre.

White Flour Poor Flour.

Erastus Wiman, writing in the North American Review, says that it is time for a reversal of opinion as to the proper color of flour. Fashion calls for white bread and the millers have obeyed the demand, but in taking out every part of the wheat that tends to darken the flour they have taken away the best qualities of the old fashioned dark bread. He quotes eminent authority to show this.

One physician says, "Where is the man who can exist on our present white bread and water? Separating the bran from the flour became fashionable at the beginning of this century. This fashion created of the dental profession, which, with its large manufacturing industries, has grown up within the last two generations. It has reached its present magnitude only because our food is systematically deprived of lime, of salts and phosphoric acid, the creators of nerve, bone and tissue, which are so signally absent from our modern white bread."

Mr. Wiman urges that we need a milling process which will grind the whole wheat so fine that the grain will not irritate the membrane of the stomach and bowels. In the modern system of milling the germ of the wheat which contains the most important element of food is discarded, because of its slight discoloration. Valuable parts of the bran are also discarded for the same reason. The ceraline in the bran is considered one of nature's most wonderful aids to digestion.

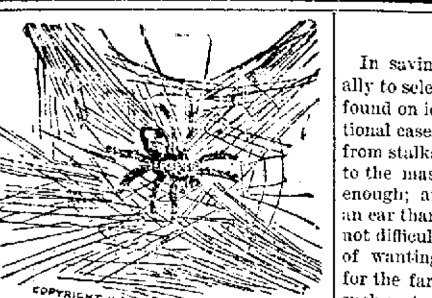

How the Indian Prays.

"Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, uttered or unexpressed." And the manner of expressing desire may differ widely. The Indian may be as religious as is the Presbyterian, yet he never addresses the Deity by word or mouth at all. Yet he asks for the blessings he needs, and asks for them with as much faith and as much reverence as does his whiter brother. They want a good corn crop and they gather a handful of green twigs or grasses, bind them together in a reverent faith that the Deity is willing and able to help them; they lay the emblem or hang them in a place where the sun will shine upon them and leave, assured that their prayer has been heard. It may not prosper right away, but they are in no wise discouraged. They bind together another emblem and offer it in another place. Some places have particular favor. It is believed the Deity sees them there better than in some other places. It is simply the Christian's idea of sanctuary in another form.

AN OLD MAN DIES TWICE.—Eli Kale aged 81 years, of Katellen, near Bethlehem, died, apparently, last Tuesday, but when the undertaker came to put the supposed corpse in the coffin the old man uttered a groan, and it was found that his was a case of suspended animation. He recovered sufficiently to converse with his friends, and vividly described his feelings while his body was being prepared for burial, during which time he could not utter a sound or move a muscle, although he knew everything that was going on around him. He lingered three days and died on Friday, from prostration, supposed to have been produced by brooding over his frightful experience.

ABOUT BUILDING.—The present building spirit points to a good spring and summer rise, and to marked additions to our town by fall. Needing more elbow room, we are inclined to go "into the swim" too. The only obstacle is the money. We cannot build without it, and cannot think of going ahead on borrowed capital; especially with twice the amount needed owing on our books. Daylight must come through this channel. PAY UP, and thus help us to a business plant that will gratify all concerned for the welfare of this old and reliable public journal. Work on our books will begin at once, and patrons in arrears must excuse the frequency and persistency of duns that will follow until settlement. The income is all to be spent on the improvement. The cause is a good one—and, in all fairness, should succeed from the start. Friends, all of you, give us an immediate and substantial lift. We are only asking what is fairly due us.

It is a matter of record that 16,576 dollars were coined in 1804, yet only eight samples are known to exists, and those that are in good condition are valued at $1,000 each.

Don't be a spider and crawl in these days! Why not keep up with the nineteenth century? You would not buy a steam engine made like those of a century ago. Then why should you buy the old-fashioned, big, drastic pills that gripe and debilitate your system?

As great improvements have been made in pills as in steam engines. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated granules, or pills, are easiest to take, and never gripe or shock the system.

They are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

One little Pellet's a laxative, three to four are cathartic. They regulate and cleanse the liver, stomach and bowels—quickly, but thoroughly. They're the cheapest pill, sold by druggists, because you only pay for the good you get. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, every time, or your money is returned. That's the peculiar plan all Dr. Pierce's medicines are sold on.

Can you ask more?

"About a year ago I took the worst cold that ever a man had, followed by a terrible cough. The best medical aid was of no avail. At last I began to spit blood, when it was supposed to be all over with me. Every remedy failed, till a neighbor recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took half a teaspoonful of this medicine, three times a day, regularly, and very soon began to improve. My cough left me, my sleep was undisturbed, my appetite returned, my emaciated limbs gained flesh and strength and, to-day, thanks to the Pectoral, I am a well man."—H. A. One Ear Enough.

In saving seed corn the aim is naturally to select ideal ears and such as are found on ideal stalks. While in exceptional cases it may be desirable to select from stalks bearing two or more ears, to the mass of farmers one good ear is enough; and it is easier to obtain such an ear than to get two poor ones. It is not difficult to see where the temptation of wanting two-eared stalks creeps in, for the farmer's mathematics point to such as to a pathway leading to double crops. But the same kind of reasoning might as well suggest the plan of putting twice as many hills on an acre. In both cases the results are likely to be disappointing, and for similar reasons. We need not try to cheat Dame Nature, nor expect "something for nothing" even from her hand. What we gain in one point we lose in another. The double-eared stalks require the best of soil, the best of care, and twice as much room as the single-eared ones. For best results there can be but one stalk to the hill, and an accident to this one stalk wipes out the whole hill. Another objection to the many-eared stalk is that it does not do equally well by all its ears. One is pushed ahead, while the others follow at intervals; the ripening is uneven, and the later ears are likely to be soft when the frost comes. It takes about one hundred and thirty medium-sized ears of corn to make a bushel when shelled. Whatever the distance between the hills, in planting corn supposed to yield one ear to the stalk, a fair number of stalks per row will be indicated by the number of feet the row is in length. Thus, one stalk every foot, two stalks every two feet, three every three feet, four every four feet, or an average of three and a half to every three and a half feet; either will give good results. If the rows are one-fifth of a rod apart it will take just eight hundred rods of rows to make an acre. Every eight rods will have its one hundred and thirty-two stalks, enough at one ear to the stalk to yield a bushel of shelled corn. At this rate an acre will yield one hundred bushels. Now let us cut these figures squarely into halves to allow for missing hills, failure to bear, and all sorts of accidents, and we still have the fair yield of fifty bushels per acre, or more than twice the actual average yield for this country as shown by the government reports.

Why not be satisfied, then, with one ear to the stalk, provided we make that one ear the fattest, soundest, and best that lies within our scope of development? Nature is usually sufficiently prolific in regard to numbers, and improvement generally lies in the development of size and quality. It is our work to pinch off blossoms and shoots, to thin out and prune, and keep down Nature's normal numbers, in order to heighten the quality. The result is not only a better grade but a greater yield when measured by bulk or weight instead of count. It is sometimes rather difficult to go through a large field of corn and trim it down to one ear to the stalk, but with a little careful practice any intelligent man can go through a field and prune it quickly and properly. If any one doubts the superior merit of this method let him set aside half an acre or more and test it in this manner for a season, treating it in all other respects of cultivation the same as his main crop. This will fully test the matter, and give him a valuable experience.—Amer. Age.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

LOOK TO FRUIT!

To Double Crops & Make trees Bear Every Year.

CHANGING THE QUALITY OF FRUIT ON LARGE TREES.

THE undersigned has had more than 25 years' experience in the Nursery business, growing fruits and training fruit trees, &c.

Had several large seedling Black Cherry trees standing on valuable soil. The trees were thriving, and 25 and 30 feet high. Some trees were 60 inches circumference near the surface. The cherries that the trees had produced were of inferior quality. Then in August, 1889, I budded all the leading side branches and a number of buds were put on the top branches, on trees 30 feet high.

In this season operations were made on all the side branches and on all the top branches of the trees, and the quality of fruit is now changed on large cherry trees to produce valuable crops in future time.

TRAINING SOME VARIETIES OF APPLE TREES in orchards that the apple crop can be grown more regular in various seasons, to grow larger crops in seasons when there is a demand for apples at favorable figures.

In the season of 1888 the apple crop was very large in America and in the winter season of 1888, until in March, 1889, apples were dull sale in Baltimore and in the cities of the United States; and in some villages in Adams county, Pa., apples sold at 25 cents a bushel in March 1889; then a considerable quantity had rotted that had grown in various orchards; and as there was no demand for apples that were grown in 1888 in the cities of the United States at favorable figures are proofs that the apple crop was also large in Europe and on Islands in 1888.

Apple trees are known to thrive and produce crops on qualities of soil that grow wheat and corn, in America, in Europe and on Islands.

In the season of 1889 the apple crop was not large, and in February 1890, apples sold at $1 a bushel in various markets in Adams county.

TRAINING APPLE TREES to grow valuable crops in all seasons, under favorable treatment. York Imperial apples have been seen to grow as large as a pound apple and the York Stripe apples have been grown on many trees as large as Smoke house apples, in various soils.

In various orchards the York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe are known to bear full crops every other year. And it has occurred in many orchards that many York Imperial and Baldwin trees have full crops in seasons when winter apples are dull sale in cities in the winter months.

WITH TRAINING INSTRUMENTS, York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe trees that have apples this season can be changed through operations of training, so that the trees will have apples next year. It is necessary for the operation of training to be done in the month of September and October.

TRAINING YOUNG APPLE ORCHARDS that the trees will bear regular crops when commencing to bear. I have witnessed young apple orchards to bear regular crops every season on trees that have been properly trained; and the York Imperial, Baldwin and Early Joe trees, that were properly trained in a young orchard, when the trees had commenced to bear, they had apples every season.

Operations of training can be done to young apple orchards through the winter months and in any month in the year when possible to spare the time.

THE VALUE OF APPLE GROWING is not yet correctly known. Have witnessed the York Stripe to grow as large as a Smokehouse apple and the York Imperial as large as a Pound Apple under favorable treatment. A number of the latest and best keeping varieties of winter apples can be much improved by proper treatment, and apples be grown much larger in size. The Baldwin, Smith's Cider, Bonnie, R. I. Greening, Winesap, Grimes Golden and Roxbury Russett can be much improved in size and quality through good treatment. Have witnessed training instruments when properly used to be the best treatment that can be rendered to trees to effect bearing a regular crop and to grow apples and fruits large in size.

IMPORTANT TREATMENT FOR GROWING PEACHES.—After peach trees are planted to grow peaches treatment of training add very valuable results. I have witnessed a peach orchard that was trained with instruments that produced 2 and 3 bushels of peaches per tree a season. During 23 and 24 years time the peaches ripened well and were of good size and were delivered to canners in York Springs and canners at other places. Scarcely a season had occurred that there was not a crop of peaches.

IMPORTANT INTERESTS CAN BE OBTAINED, through planting peach trees along fences, to grow peaches. I have witnessed peach trees that were planted along fences, where the trees had the attention of training, and they produced crops of peaches 2 and 3 bushels a tree. During 25 and 30 years time the peaches were nice size and of perfect quality and were sold to canners at various places what were not needed for home use. The trees had all been budded when planted and had been taken off of the nursery as large in size as they could be obtained. They were planted along fences where there were no other trees and the fences were kept clean of thorns and rubbish, and peach growing resulted successfully along fences. One row of peach trees along a fence in a few years' time the trees flourished and it gives nourishment from the fertilizer in corn and wheat, &c.

IT IS A VERY TRUE FACT that on many farms and residences planting peach trees into orchards to grow peaches have proven failures, and peach orchards on many farms and locations have proven to be short lived.

Peaches can be successfully grown along fences that are kept clean of thorns and rubbish, and through rendering to the trees simple treatment to prevent the yellows.

PROTECTION can be rendered to peach trees that are planted along fences, with wire and posts at a moderate expense, to secure the trees from becoming injured by stock or cattle, and with simple treatment peaches can be successfully grown along fences of perfect quality, along such places where wheat and corn is grown.

WHEAT AND CORN require some simple attention to grow perfect crops, and peach trees will do their duty when standing near corn and wheat, and with simple treatments produce favorable crops of luscious fruits in their season.

SEASON to train peach trees is through the winter months and in the spring until May, securing peach trees from the yellows has to be attended to in November before the earth freezes up solid.

Baldwin and York Imperial apple trees have to be treated with some very special care in September and October, that have apples this season, if the trees are desired to have apples next season.

A candidate to render some service to orchardists in various parts of Adams county, Pa., at periods when possible to spare the time. To train trees, and will then make known the treatments to secure peach trees healthy and productive during many years time.
